THE PUBLICATION OF THE SOUTHWEST MINNESOTA ARTS & HUMANITIES COUNCIL, INC.

Joe Paddock SMAHC 2009 Prairie Disciple

We proudly present Joe Paddock as the SMAHC Prairie Disciple for 2009. This award is provided to provide awareness and recognition of one individual per year from southwest Minnesota, whose activities have best aided in the development of the arts in the SMAHC region. In the words of Jean Replinger who nominated him, "He has performed his magic in teaching and writing...and encouraged others of all ages in the written and oral arts in nearly every venue imaginable: nursing homes, grade schools, university classes, farm community gatherings, urban and city bookstores, parks, etc. He invested a lifetime of learning, writing and giving his artistic know-how and inspiration to others."

Paddock grew up in Litchfield, Minnesota, to which after a long absence, he has returned. He is living in the house in which he grew up. Litchfield was a thriving community in the 1940s and '50s. He was surrounded by grassroots storytellers and the words of those elder tellers still resonate in him and in his writings.

He attended public school in Litchfield. The teaching there was substantial, though arts education was limited. His interest in writing came early. When he was in second grade, an older neighborhood kid took him to the old Carnegie library, the first trip of many to come. Amazed by all the books in the stacks, he asked where all these books came from. "People write them", was his friend's response." He thought, what a great way to make a living. He was hooked, and he never deviated from the commitment that took hold of him on that day..

Paddock learned to love the environment through his father who was a passionate outdoorsman. He deeply loved the little lakes and hardwood hills of Meeker County. He later spent much of a six-year period living in a primitive cabin on Minnesota's wild Kettle River. His focus during those years was on nature observation, meditation, and dream-work, and it was then that he first began to regularly publish poetry. He states, "While working with environmental organizations, my approach has always been to educate by way of poetry and story." This is a strategy he used while working with the American Farm Project and the Land Stewardship Project as well as in giving programs in a great many other environmental settings. Paddock is the Vice President of the Ernest C. Oberholtzer Foundation and wrote the biography of wilderness preservationist Oberholtzer (Keeper of the Wild, Minnesota Historical Society Press, 2001). As such, he sometimes functions as "keeper of the story" for the organization.

Paddock has been involved in many arts organizations, including COMPAS, SMAHC, The National Endowments for the Arts and Humanities, The Creative Writing Department of the University of Minnesota, the Minnesota Rural Arts Initiative, Self Expressing Earth. He is currently facilitating the Litchfield Area Writers Group which he founded in 1990.

SMAHC Annual Celebration 2009

The SMAHC Annual Celebration date has been set. This event will be on October 24, 2009 at the Willmar Conference Center (Holiday Inn). It promises to be a great evening of fun and festivities. We will be honoring our 2009 Prairie Star recipient, Robert Mattson from New London and 2009 Prairie Disciple recipient, Joe Paddock of Litchfield. We will be returning to the Live Auction and the Silent Auction again this year. Be looking for the auction items listed on our website in September. There will be some great entertainment throughout the evening. We are breaking away with the tradition of costumes optional in favor of semi-formal (or formal) dress.

This is a great opportunity to meet and greet arts advocates and artist from throughout the SMAHC region. The evening begins at 5:30 with opening entertainment. We hope you mark this date on your calendar - and don't miss it! Photos can be found on the SMAHC website at

As a long time member of SMAHC, Paddock has been an advocate for the arts in SW Minnesota. He became one of two first National Endowment for the Arts "Poets in the Community" in the town of Olivia. This was a pilot project funded by the NEA with help from SMAHC and administered by COMPAS. This new project met with some fierce resistance by many in the community. He soon found that the project couldn't be about him as poet, and that it must have to do with enhancing the creativity of people in the community and in digging into and bringing to light the greatness of the community's own story. It was then that he became an oral historian, and The Things We Know Best, the 140,000 work book that he collected and edited (with the help of a truly dedicated supported committee) won the day for the project. In the end, the city council which had previously been hostile, gave him the keys to the city.

Paddock worked on many other projects including two one-year SMAHC-sponsored (NEA funded) regional poetry projects which he shared with his poet wife Nancy. He remembers that during the first of these they worked in 42 different communities, providing readings and workshops and working as poets in the classroom. SMAHC published and distributed a chapbook of his poetry during each of those years. In the following years, while working with the American Farm Project and the Land Stewardship Project, he was often involved with short-term SMAHC projects and programs, including a number of oral history workshops given to communities in the region.

After he moved back to Litchfield, SMAHC helped to fund the "Recovering the Story" project which Paddock coordinated and which led to an extensive oral history collection covering much of the 20th Century, a produced play he wrote from this content, and the Litchfield Area Writers Group, the members of which have now published 13 books. He states, "COMPAS published the first, SMAHC provided a grant to publish the second, and from that time on, we've sold well enough to become self-sustaining."

Paddock has had a great impact on many people over the years. When asked about that impact, he commented, "As for my impact on other people, it may not be appropriate for me to say a lot about this. However, I will say that I have always loved to help enhance the creativity of others, less that they will become professional writers than that they will become more fully aware of and connected to the creative dimension in themselves. In a similar vein, I take real satisfaction in helping others to more fully discover the story in which they are grounded."

We congratulated Joe Paddock on receiving the SMAHC Prairie Disciple Award and thank him for his contribution to the arts in our region.

Many thanks to Joe Paddock for contributing to this story. You can read the full Q & A interview with Paddock on the SMAHC website (www.smahc.org). You can also read his bio included in his poetry book "Dark Dreaming, Global Dimming" and a Paddock essay, "Local Story and the Power of Art."

Spotlight on Memorial Auditorium – Dawson, Lac qui Parle County

Submitted by Luanne Fondell, Performing Arts Director

Memorial Auditorium opened its doors for the first time with a sold out concert featuring Riders in the Sky in September of 2001. The performance was funded with a grant from SMAHC. Two months later the Saint Paul Chamber Orchestra arrived for a student workshop and public concert as a partner in an Arts Across Minnesota Host Community grant. These two concerts were part of Dawson-Boyd Arts Association's premier season and demonstrate the variety of quality performances that have become standard for the venue.

Dawson-Boyd Arts Association was organized in conjunction with the school district's decision to renovate the school's gymnasium/auditorium into a space used solely for the performing arts. The formation of the Arts Association was a natural step for a community and school district with a long history of supporting the arts.

With the efforts of enthusiastic community volunteers, a ten-member board of directors and a part time performing arts director, the past eight seasons have seen notable growth in the quality of artistic performances, the wide range of artistic disciplines presented and gradually increasing audiences. The Arts Association also provides performances and workshops for students of the Dawson-Boyd School District in conjunction with selected public performances during the season. Children's theater performances are offered to neighboring school districts as an alternative to lengthy bus rides to larger venues. Additionally, local visual artists exhibit in the lobby prior to selected concerts. These exhibits provide great exposure for local artists as well as opportunities for arts patrons to view new work. Dawson-Boyd Arts Association's mission to nurture the visual and performing arts is achieved through these student and public performances.

Dawson-Boyd Arts Association has presented professional artists from a variety of artistic disciplines and cultures including folk music and classical music, dance, theater, jazz, popular "classics" and community concerts such as Handel's Messiah. Highlights of past seasons include world famous violinist Midori with pianist Robert McDonald, author Bill Holm, jazz pianist Butch Thompson, Maynard Ferguson and his Big Bop Nouveau, Lake Wobegon Brass Band, Mu Daiko, Kevin Kling and Peter Ostroushko.

From its beginning, the Arts Association has benefited from SMAHC grants that have provided assistance in purchasing office furniture, computer equipment and a dance floor, as well as assistance in presenting quality artists for the audiences of west-central Minnesota. This grant assistance has been critical to our organizational and artistic success.

For more information about Memorial Auditorium and for information about next season's performances, visit the website at dawsonboydarts.org.

SMAHC Presents Artist Business Skills Workshops

SMAHC is offering a series of workshops for artists presented by the Springboard for the Arts. This new series of four workshops include: ♦♦ Record Keeping & Financial Management for Artists, ♦♦ Simple Business plans for Artists, ♦♦ Pricing Your work-Getting paid for What You Do, and ♦♦ Funding Your work.

This is the second of a series of two weekend workshops. The first series was held on June 12 & 13 and it was well received by the artists who attended. We hope you will take advantage of this opportunity to learn more about the business of being an artist. We are sure they will be most valuable to you.

The dates of the workshops are Friday, July 24, from 3:00 to 9:30 pm and Saturday, 9:30 am to 4:30 pm. Each day begins with a free hands-on workshop on bookmaking by Monica Villars. The cost of the workshops for residents in the SMAHC region is $15 for each workshop.

The workshops will be held at the Multi Purpose Building, Upper Sioux Community, 5 miles southeast of Granite Falls on Highway 67. Turn south on Travers Lane - watch for the water tower. You can obtain a brochure with all the descriptions for all the workshops and the registration form by calling SMAHC at 800-622-5284 or by visiting the website at www.smahc.org. You can also register for the workshops online at www.smahc.org.
